The development of the Republic of Uzbekistan is closely linked with the education, spirituality and culture of the younger generation. Attention and care for young people in our country is one of the priorities of the policy pursued in our country. The achievements in every field are a bright manifestation of this care and support. It is the sacred duty of every child of Uzbekistan to live with a sense of belonging to the motherland and to make effective use of the opportunities provided.

Bringing up well-rounded, purposeful and energetic young people with modern knowledge and skills, who can take responsibility for the decent future of the country, is the most important condition for the sustainable and rapid development of the country.

That is why in recent years the head of our state has been paying great attention to the issue of youth, which is the future of our country. Raising the issue of youth to the level of state policy, to increase the socio-economic activity of young people on the ground, to involve them in entrepreneurial activities, to implement promising ideas and projects of young entrepreneurs, as well as to raise them as a highly spiritual, intelligent, knowledgeable generation the necessary conditions are being created for

The announcement by the President of 2021 as the Year of Youth Support and Public Health is a direct continuation of these reforms. Announcing the name of the new year, he said, "In general, a decisive role in the development of any society is played by the healthy and harmonious development of the younger generation, on which the future of this society depends. That is why we rely on our enthusiastic, enterprising, well-developed young people with modern knowledge and skills to support us in expanding our reforms and making them more effective. ”

It is said in a hadith: "No father can give his child a greater inheritance than morality." (Imam Bukhari's Al-Adab al-Mufrad).

Today, in order to support talented youth in our country, modern education for young people in the Presidential schools, Temurbek school, creative and specialized schools is becoming a solid foundation of the New Renaissance.

It should be noted that this forum addressed new opportunities for young people, which led to a radical change in the worldview of our youth in New Uzbekistan. One of them is the introduction of a Presidential grant next year for 200 young people who have scored the highest in the entrance exams to higher education institutions.

In addition, preferential educational loans will be provided to families with two or more children studying at the university on a contract basis. Particular attention will be paid to helping our youth to study at prestigious foreign universities.

In particular, the cost of exams for talented young people who have the highest scores in international educational programs will be fully reimbursed.

The fact that more than 30 billion soums have been allocated for the innovative competition "Young Scientists" in order to encourage young researchers is a great opportunity.

It is noteworthy that from 2021, schoolchildren and university students will be instructed to allocate 50 billion soums for the best innovative and startup projects of young people through the organization of the competition "Future Scientist".

The initiatives of President Shavkat Mirziyoyev in improving the youth policy in the new Uzbekistan in line with modern requirements should be especially noted. The constant attention of the head of our state to the development of young people is especially evident in the education reforms.

The issues of transferring students from foreign educational institutions to our own universities, testing processes, testing their knowledge in 5 universities at the same time are a vivid example of this. Of course, these days have been dreamed of by our people for centuries. In particular, Mahmudhoja Behbudi, one of our Jadids, thinking about the development and prospects of the nation, the future of Turkestan, came to the conclusion that the only way to save the people from the swamp of ignorance and ignorance, freedom and poverty is to be enlightened.

Behbudi, on the other hand, sent Turkestan's young people, who were interested in collecting money from the people and studying science, to foreign engineers who could not afford their parents. put forward the idea of enhancing the development of the country by acquiring.

Abdurauf Fitrat, one of the Jadids, said that it is impossible to reform a society and direct its development to development without educating the younger generation in the right way. "The better the upbringing, the happier the people," say the sages.

It is narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn Samura that the Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: It is clear from this that giving a child good manners and education is better than spending money and giving alms.

Concluding from these views, we must all feel responsible for the upbringing of young people and work together to combat the evils that are not unique to our society.

In conclusion, youth is the future of any society. The struggle for destructive and enlightening ideas for their consciousness continues. In this ideological struggle, the winner is the side that has justified the confidence of the youth with its noble practical actions. After all, a harmoniously developed generation and high-moral patriotic youth are the real successors of today and tomorrow.
